

Dr. Paula Kellett - European Marine Board

What next for oceans and human health in science and maritime policy: a European perspective.

In this presentation, Dr. Kellett will introduce background information on the links between oceans and human health, the risks and benefits, and the challenges and opportunities they bring. The presentation will summarize the policy context for oceans and human health in Europe and will outline the work carried out to date by the European Marine Board in this field, presenting the 2013 EMB position paper and its recommendations, what has been done since then, and the next steps.
